REPORT.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Raleigh, 3rd December, 1828.

To the General Assembly of the State of North Carolina.

GENTLEMEN,—I have the honor to submit sundry papers in relation to the militia, embracing all the objects required to be reported from this Office annually, marked as follows:

Abstract of the various description of troops and of arms belonging to the State, as well as those in the hands of the Militia, A.

Roster of General Officers, : : : B.

Report of arms belonging to the State, : : : C.

List of delinquents, : : : D.

When we take into view the organization of the militia prescribed by act of Congress, and the provisions which have been made by our State Legislature for carrying it into effect, it cannot be matter of surprise to find that at the expiration of upwards of thirty years, the Militia of our State had not only made no progress in discipline, but were daily becoming more inactive and burdensome to the State. Nor could it be expected that the State, with the means at its disposal, would be competent to render so large a portion of the community, as is required under this system to be trained, effective militia. To subject about three fourths of the male population, as is required, to a course of training, which would be productive of that degree of discipline necessary to give efficiency to their operations when called into service, and to have applied the fiscal resources of the State to compensate the citizens for the consumption of time which would be requisite to the accomplishment of this object, would have been attended with sacrifices, the circumstances of the people, nor the funds of the State at no period since the adoption of this plan of organization, would have warranted.

The primary defect in the militia system, will be seen, therefore, to consist in the excess of numbers which the act of Congress proposes to hold to service; and to this source, principally, may be traced the failure of all the efforts which have been made to introduce discipline and regularity in the militia of the State; and every day's observation confirms me still more fully in the correctness of the view taken in my last report in regard to this subject, to which I have recurred and followed in the preceding remarks, that it will be vain, with the resources of the State, to legislate, with hope of any material change for the better, under the present system; but that the decline, which is, and for many years has been apparent, will continue, and, in proportion to the increase of numbers, the mass will become still more unwieldly.

From the view taken of the militia in the preceding remarks, it is conceived, that no alteration in the laws of the State, under the present system, can be productive of any essential improvement in their discipline; and that Congress will be compelled, ere long, to give to the subject that attention its importance demands. And it is confidently hoped, that during its present session, will take the matter under consideration, and present to the States a plan of organization, upon which a system of training can be built, that will render the militia the pride of our country, and to the government, for defence, a safe reliance.

In obedience to an act of the last General Assembly, "making it the duty of the Adjutant General to have erected on the south west corner of the capitol square an Arsenal for the reception of the arms belonging to the State," I have caused to be built a house of the size and description prescribed by that act. It is with much pleasure I can assure the Legislature the whole of the materials out of which it was built are the most durable of their kind, and that the work has been executed in a faithful manner, and in strict conformity with the terms of the contract. It becomes necessary now, that provision be made for the removal of the arms to this place, and for having such as may be found in a damaged state repaired and put in a condition for preservation. The lower windows will require grates, and racks for holding the loose arms will also be necessary; as to what number, cannot be ascertained till the Legislature shall determine the quantity of arms to be left in the hands of the militia.

I would beg leave to suggest, whether it would not be advisable to call in all the arms in the hands of volunteer companies, except such as are located in towns, where the insurrection of slaves is mostly to be apprehended; and to those towns, I would recommend that upon condition their respective police will assume the responsibility of the charge of the arms, to distribute among the following the number annexed to each:

Wilmington,	:	:	:	200	Muskets & Bayonets.
Newbern,	:	:	:	200	do do
Washington,	:	:	:	200	do do
Edenton,	:	:	:	100	do do
Elizabeth City,	:	:	:	100	do do
Halifax,	:	:	:	100	do do
Fayetteville,	:	:	:	100	do do

1,000

The arms due from the General Government, which were expected in the early part of this year, have not yet arrived.

I have the honor, gentlemen, to be

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

BEV. DANIEL, Adj't. Gen.
